

Interreligious dialogue, the motor, driving new synergies to Harmony

Description: The WIHW 2014 celebration in Brussels took a didactic approach: 1. Testifying to the force of interreligious dialogue through actors from various religions, acting on different levels.

2. Presenting the play: «Pierre & Mohamed» as a launch pad, a true illustration and a vibrant appeal for dialogue. It goes beyond cultural, social, religious and philosophical divides and firmly takes a stand on the humanist path. “Dialogue is a never-ending work: only dialogue enables us to disarm fanaticism, both within ourselves and in others”

3. Offering participants spaces for exchanges where they can pledge for harmonious societies through interfaith dialogue and common action.

To reach the widest possible audience, WIHW Brussels 2014 was targeting various audiences with different types of mobilisation, using symbolic venues:

A. La Cambre Church, Cambre Abbey (9-2-2014 at 15.00): focussing on political, religious, diplomatic, academic decision-makers. European SPES Forum, which has as overall aim to make spirituality accessible as a public asset to as many people as possible.

- Following the discovery of the bond between two people showcased in the play, Hispanik has created a rap dedicated to dialogue. (9-2-2014/18:30)

4. The Play: “Pierre & Mohamed » written by Adrien Candiard, with Jean-Baptiste Germain in both roles: Bishop Claverie and Mohamed Bouchikri. Francesco Agnello playing a new musical instrument, the hang. This play recounts a tragic happening in Algeria in 1996 when Pierre Claverie, Bishop, and Mohamed Bouchikri, a Muslim driver who accompanied him, were both murdered.

The play ‘Pierre and Mohamed’ by Francesco Agnello is the result of a concrete human experience, a friendship between two men, far from the coldness of institutional meetings or from the laudable yet simple statements of general intent. This message is still relevant today, as various religious fundamentalisms are getting more and more violent across the world.

5. Moment for sharing remarks and thoughts between the audience and the speakers and actors.

6. Reception and exchanges

(9-2-2014) the main audience was made up of decision-makers

Location : La Cambre Church, Cambre Abbey (9-2-2014); At the European School of Brussels/Woluwe (10-2-2014: 14.30); At the Maritime Community Centre of Molenbeek St Jean (10-2-2014 at 18.30).

Events: Various other encounters with different audiences around the theme of dialogue: speeches – testimonies - sharing good practises - theatre - sharing reflexions - informal encounter.

Wishes: RfP Belgium is based in Brussels, the heart of Europe and as the current President of RfP/Europe is Belgian, this action can be disseminated through the whole network of RfP/Europe. We all work on a purely voluntary basis, with no subsidies. However, we have received many requests to present this event in other cities and other schools, and to translate it for other countries. Given the high costs involved, it is not at present possible to give a positive answer to such requests however pressing.
